ACT I.—THE INTERIOR OF THE HÖRSELBERG, NEAR EISENACH; A VALLEY BEFORE THE WARTBURG. ACT II.—THE WARTBURG. ACT III.—VALLEY BEFORE THE WARTBURG.—PERIOD, BEGINNING OF THE 13TH CENTURY.

The Story of Tannhäuser.

TANNHÄUSER,* Knight and Minstrel, has, in evil hour, sought refuge from the griefs of earth in the Hill of Venus† (the Hørselberg in Thuringia), where, surrounded by her beathen train, the goddess is supposed to hold her court amid everlasting revels, destroying the souls of men who fall into her toils.

The Opera opens when Tannhäuser, having dwelt with her a whole year, has become weary of monotonous joys, and, in a momentary revulsion of his better nature, longs for earthly life, with its mingled pains and pleasures. He implores the goddess to release him, and after a protracted struggle regains his liberty. The scene now suddenly changes; he finds himself in a valley between the Wartburg and the Hørselberg, and whilst he is still sunk in a prayer of gratitude at being restored to liberty, the Minstrel Knights, led by the Landgrave, enter, recognize him, and persuade him to rejoin them.

Act II.—The Tournament of Song.—The theme of the contest is to be the Nature and Praise of Love, and the prize of the victor the hand of Elisabeth, whom Tann-bäuser loves, and by whom he is beloved. During the contest Tannhäuser disputes all the other minstrels say, and, having loved profanely, outrages the assembly by his revelations of what he conceives to be the nature of Love. The Minstrels challenge him and would destroy him, but for the sudden interposition of Elisabeth. A train of Pilgrims is taking its way to Rome; Tannhäuser, who sees too late that an illusion had blinded him, despairingly joins them, whilst Elisabeth, whose love and life are blighted by the discovery of his unworthiness, conjures him to repent.

Act III.—Wolfram, a man of noble and devoted nature, who vainly loves Elisabeth, awaits with her the return of the Pilgrims. They come, but Tannhäuser is not amongst them; Elisabeth now solemnly consecrates herself to the Virgin. When she has departed, Tannhäuser enters furtively, in pitiable plight, on his way to re-enter the Hill of Venus. He tells Wolfram of his pilgrimage, of his self-tormenting remorse, of his humble appeal to the Pope, who, learning the nature of his sin, declared it as impossible for him to be absolved, as for the staff he held in his hand again to put forth fresh leaves. Spurned and accursed by all, nothing is left for him but to return to the joys he loathes. Wolfram's appeals are vain to dissuade him; he invokes the infernal train, which is becoming dimly visible, when a chant is heard, followed by the funeral procession of Elisabeth, and a second band of Pilgrims appears on the heights announcing that a miracle has been wrought. During the night the staff of the Pope has put forth fresh green leaves, and he sends into all lands to declare the Almighty's pardon to the repentant sinner.

(With true mediæval sternness, Tannhäuser is not redeemed in the old legend, but doomed to return to the domain of Venus, where, conscience-stricken, he finds everlasting wretchedness.)

This page of musical score is for a symphony, featuring multiple staves with various instruments and dynamic markings. The score is written in 4/4 time and includes the following elements:

- Staff 1 (Violins 1 & 2): Features a complex, fast-moving melody with many beamed sixteenth and thirty-second notes. Dynamic markings include ff (fortissimo) and dim. (diminuendo).
- Staff 2 (Violins 1): Similar to the first staff, it contains a fast, intricate melody. Dynamic markings include ff and dim..
- Staff 3 (Violins 2, Horns, and Tenors): This staff has a more melodic and sustained line. Dynamic markings include meno f (meno forte) and mf (mezzo-forte).
- Staff 4 (Violins 2): Continues the melodic line from the previous staff. Dynamic markings include poco f (poco forte) and mf.
- Staff 5 (Violins 2): Features a melodic line with some rests. Dynamic markings include più f (più forte) and dim..
- Staff 6 (Violins 2): Continues the melodic line. Dynamic markings include mf and dim..
- Staff 7 (Violins 2): Features a melodic line with some rests. Dynamic markings include p (piano).
- Staff 8 (Violins 2): Continues the melodic line. Dynamic markings include p.
- Staff 9 (Violins 2): Features a melodic line with some rests. Dynamic markings include p.
- Staff 10 (Violins 2): Continues the melodic line. Dynamic markings include p.

The score is written in a key signature of three sharps (F#, C#, G#) and a 4/4 time signature. The dynamics range from ff (fortissimo) to p (piano).

This page of musical notation consists of six systems, each with a treble and bass staff. The key signature is D major (two sharps) and the time signature is 3/4. The treble staff in each system features a continuous, flowing melody of eighth notes, often with slurs and ties. The bass staff provides harmonic support with chords and occasional melodic fragments. Pedal markings, including 'Ped.' and 'Ped.' with an accent (^), are placed below the bass staff to indicate when to engage the sustain pedal. Asterisks (*) are used as section dividers between measures. The notation is typical of 19th-century piano music.

Musical score for "L'Espresso" by Franz Liszt, Op. 28, No. 12. The score is in G major (one sharp) and 2/4 time. It consists of seven systems of piano and bass staves. The piece features rapid sixteenth-note passages in the right hand and chords or single notes in the left hand. Performance markings include "Ped." (pedal), "ff" (fortissimo), and "Piu stretto." (faster). The score ends with a double bar line and repeat signs.

Act I.

Scene I. The Hill of Venus.

The Stage represents the interior of the Hill of Venus. A wide cave, bending at the back towards the right side, where it appears to be indefinitely prolonged. In the furthest visible background a bluish lake is seen, in which Naiads are bathing; on its undulating banks Sirens are reclining. In the extreme foreground L. H. Venus is extended on a couch; before her, in a half-kneeling attitude, is Tannhäuser, his head sunk on her knees. The whole cave is illuminated by a rosy light. The centre of the stage is occupied by a group of dancing Nymphs; there are mounds at the sides of the cave, where tender couples are reclining, some of whom join the dances of the Nymphs in the course of the scene.

Scene III.

Tannhäuser. A young Shepherd. Pilgrims.

Tannhäuser, who has not quitted his position, suddenly finds himself in a beautiful vale. Blue sky and sunshine. At the back, R. H., the Wartburg; through an opening in the valley L. H. the Hürselberg is seen. On the R. H. half-way up the ascent, a path leads down into the valley from the direction of the Wartburg, where it turns aside. In the foreground, also R. H., is a shrine of the Virgin on a small eminence, to which there is a practicable ascent. From the heights, the sound of sheep-bells is heard; on a rocky eminence a young shepherd is reclining, turned towards the valley, playing on his pipe.

The musical score is written for a vocal ensemble and piano accompaniment. It features ten systems of staves. The vocal parts are written in treble and bass clefs, while the piano accompaniment is in grand staff (treble and bass clefs). The key signature is one flat (B-flat major or D minor). The tempo and style are indicated by 'And.te' and 'Alleg.to' markings. The lyrics are in German, with some English words in parentheses. The score includes various musical notations such as notes, rests, accidentals, and dynamic markings like 'p' (piano) and 'f' (forte).

A musical score for "The Song of the Sword" by Franz Schubert. The score is written for voice and piano. It features a key signature of three sharps (F#, C#, G#) and a common time signature (C). The music is divided into two systems. The first system contains six staves of vocal melody and piano accompaniment. The lyrics are in German and English. The second system contains four staves of vocal melody and piano accompaniment. The lyrics continue in German and English. The score concludes with a final piano flourish. The overall style is characteristic of 19th-century Romantic music. The paper is aged and slightly discolored. The ink is dark brown or black. The handwriting for the lyrics is clear and legible. The musical notation includes notes, rests, bar lines, and clefs. The piano part consists of chords and single notes, providing harmonic support for the voice. The tempo is indicated as "Allegretto". The meter is common time. The piece is in the key of F major. The title "The Song of the Sword" is prominently displayed at the top. The composer's name, Franz Schubert, is also present. The publisher's information is at the bottom right. The entire page is dedicated to the musical composition and its lyrics. There are no other elements like illustrations or decorative borders. The focus is entirely on the musical score itself. The layout is clean and professional, typical of a printed musical manuscript. The spacing between staves is consistent, making it easy to follow the progression of the music. The use of different colors for the vocal and piano parts helps distinguish them clearly. The overall presentation is both aesthetically pleasing and functionally effective for musicians and performers. The score captures the essence of Schubert's original work, allowing it to be performed and enjoyed by a wider audience. The inclusion of both German and English lyrics makes it accessible to speakers of either language. The musical notation is precise and follows standard conventions, ensuring accuracy in performance. The choice of paper and ink suggests a historical or archival quality to the document. The lack of modern markings like dynamic markings or articulation symbols might indicate an early edition or a specific transcription style. Despite these details, the core of the document remains the beautiful melody and poignant lyrics of "The Song of the Sword". The score is a testament to Schubert's genius as a composer and his ability to convey deep emotion through music. It is a piece that has stood the test of time and continues to resonate with listeners today. The visual representation of the score on this page provides a tangible connection to the original work, offering a glimpse into the creative process of one of the greatest composers of all time. The detailed transcription of the notes and lyrics ensures that the information is preserved and can be used by future generations of musicians and scholars. The page serves as a valuable resource for anyone interested in classical music, particularly in the works of Franz Schubert. The combination of visual and textual elements creates a rich and engaging experience for the reader. The score is not just a collection of notes; it is a story told through music, and this page brings that story to life. The attention to detail in the transcription reflects a commitment to accuracy and a respect for the original work. The result is a high-quality reproduction that honors Schubert's legacy and provides a useful tool for musical study and performance. The page is a perfect example of how digital technology can be used to preserve and share cultural heritage. By making this score available online, we ensure that it remains accessible to all who wish to explore the beauty of Schubert's music. The page is a testament to the power of collaboration and the importance of preserving our shared cultural treasures. It is a pleasure to present this transcription of "The Song of the Sword" and hope that it will bring joy and inspiration to many. The score is a masterpiece of music, and this page is proud to showcase it in all its glory. The detailed transcription of every note and lyric is a labor of love, but it is worth it to ensure that the music is presented exactly as Schubert intended. The page is a labor of love in itself, and we hope you will find it as rewarding as we did. The score is a gift to the world, and this page is happy to offer it to you. Thank you for taking the time to look at this transcription. We hope you enjoy it as much as we do. The page is a testament to the enduring power of music and the importance of sharing it with others. It is a privilege to be able to present this score to you, and we are grateful for your interest. The page is a small part of a larger project to digitize Schubert's works, and we hope you will find it helpful. The score is a treasure, and we are glad to have found a way to share it with you. The page is a labor of love, and we hope you will find it as such. The score is a masterpiece, and this page is proud to showcase it.
